Indebtedness of the Town over means, $20,090 08

In 1878 there were reported in claims due the town, $2,295 00 in United States bonnties which, considering them worthless, we do not report. Should we report them, the indebtedness of the town would be $17,795 08.

Pursuant to a vote of the town March, 1878, authorizing the Selectmen to make an investigation of the financial affairs of the town, we report that we have made a thorough examination with the aid of F. W. Reeves, of Laconia, of the Selectmen's and Treasurer's books from 1868 to 1878. We found the sum of $1,305 00 in the hands of T. E. Clough, former Treasurer, which was not accounted for but has been paid to the Treasurer for the present year.

Report of School Committee.

In submitting my report I am happy to say that the schools during the year have been almost without exception successful. The Prudential Committee have exercised good judgment in the selection of teachers, the teachers themselves have been faithful in the discharge of their duties, the scholars have been diligent and interested, and in most cases the work of the school-room has been supplemented by the interest and encouragement of parents and friends; so that altogether the money devoted to this branch of town affairs has been expended to as good advantage as was perhaps possible under existing circumstances. I have endeavored to remedy somewhat the difficulties under which the schools have so long labored from an insufficient supply of proper text-books, or at least from a lack of uniformity in those text-books. I chose the subject of Grammars, as being the department in which a change was at once most necessary on account of the woefully muddled condition of the books, and easiest on account of the comparatively small number pursuing that study. I am happy to report that one series of Grammars is now in use throughout the town, and the advantages resulting from the change are already obviously great. I spent much time and attention in examining the different authors, and finally selected Swinton's New Series, which is generally considered by the best educators the finest course in Grammar yet issued, and I secured such advantageous terms as to bring the books within the means of all. I earnestly hope that my successor will carefully examine the books before allowing them to be supplanted by others. The main step has been accomplished by their introduction; to maintain them in use is a comparatively easy task. In this connection I am sorry to state that in introducing the books in District No. 7 I met with an opposition which was as unexpected as it was unpleasant. In common with all the other schools in town I provided the scholars in this district with the new Grammars at the beginning of the term, and I was not a little surprised a few weeks later at having two of the books returned together with the information that the parents of the boys for whom they were left refused to take them. I immediately visited the school, explained the matter, told the boys that I was making a general introduction and must insist on their taking the books, and that if their fathers, after understanding the case better, were still unwilling to buy them I would rather give them the books than have them study any other. Shortly after the teacher again wrote me, saying that the parents refused to allow their boys to study the books even if given to them. I then requested the teacher to hear recitations in no other Grammar than the one designated—a request with which I understand she complied. I report this incident because I understand my action in the matter caused some feeling and aroused some comment, and I wish the truth to be known. If any one supposes that there is any profit or amusement to be derived from the process of "sifting out" old school-books, he is sadly mistaken; the task is always a difficult and often a thankless one, and he who attempts it finds his reward only in the consciousness that he has discharged his duty to the pupils for whom he is laboring. The advantages of uniformity in text-books need no advocate; either they are self-evident or they never can be made evident. To every one who has any knowledge or conception of educational means they are at once obvious; with those who have no such knowledge or conception, who maintain that it matters not what or how many books are used, that "Adams's Arithmetic" and "Smith's Grammar" are as desirable as the works of more modern authors, it is useless to argue; the Egyptian darkness of their stupidity may not be penetrated! I am glad to say that, with these two exceptions the intelligent parents of the town were more than willing to sanction a step so obviously necessary; but for the benefit of the gentlemen referred to as well as of any others who may labor under a misapprehension of the functions of the School Committee in regard to text books, I beg leave to submit the following extracts from the School Laws, Chapter 81:

SEC. 11. Any text-book or series of text-books which, on the tenth day of July, 1867, shall have been in established use in any school for a less time than three years, and any which shall be thereafter introduced by the School Committee, shall continue in use therein for the term of three years from its introduction, and during that time no other text-book on the same subject shall be used.

SEC. 12. The School Committee may direct a change of one of the text-books or series of text-books on one subject, used in each class of schools kept in town, annually, and no more; but no book shall be introduced calculated to favor any religious sect or tenet.

I wish to embrace this opportunity to thank teachers, pupils and friends, for the unvarying courtesy extended to me in the discharge of my duties. The year has been a very pleasant one to me and has resulted in the formation of many friendships which I hope may long continue. I am fully conscious of my lack of experience and of qualifications for a position which, however considered generally, is yet one of high responsibility; but I have conscientiously endeavored to be of service to the scholars of the town, and if I have not succeeded in my efforts to make the schools better, I yet trust that they are in no worse condition at least from my connection with them. I now respectfully submit my report of the several schools, considering each district in its numerical order:

DISTRICT NO. 1.—This District has certainly discharged its full duty in the initiation of young teachers, three young ladies having here made their first attempt at teaching; if the experiment always proves as successful as it has the past year, no one can blame the District if in the future it steers clear of any but inexperienced teachers. Summer term taught by Miss Myrtie J. Plumer. There was no more satisfactory or successful school in town during the year. Miss Plumer displays a remarkable aptitude for teaching and achieved results of which an experienced teacher might well be proud. The school made a very fine appearance at its closing examination, and the large attendance of parents and friends showed that the teacher and scholars had received the benefit of their active sympathy and cooperation. Fall term taught by Miss Flora O. Bean. The school appeared well at its commencement, but it closed somewhat unexpectedly so that there was not time to notify me, and consequently I could not judge of the progress made. I am glad to believe, however, from the reports of the committee and others, that the school was a creditable one to all concerned. Winter term taught by Miss Laura E. Randlett. Miss Randlett is a fine scholar and has a happy faculty of imparting instruction. Her success with her first school augurs well for future efforts.

DISTRICT NO. 2.—Summer and fall terms both taught by Miss Alice E. Freese. Miss Freese belongs in the very front rank of our teachers. With fine ability and an excellent education she unites a happy way of winning the affection and good will of her scholars, and is thus able to govern them without recourse to the sterner methods which some others find it necessary to adopt. Both terms highly successful in every particular.

DISTRICT NO. 4.—Summer and fall terms taught by Miss Elizabeth A. Morrill. This school has been fortunate in having thoroughly competent teachers for several terms and the good results are apparent in the general character of the school. Its interests and reputation were alike safe in the hands of Miss Morrill, who is a teacher of ability and culture, and realizes from the thoroughness of her own education the importance of imparting thorough instruction to others. Order and progress alike excellent.

DISTRICT NO. 4.—Summer and fall terms taught by Mrs. Sarah E. Small, who was a most faithful and devoted teacher and labored unremittingly to make the terms successful. The scholars appreciated her efforts and studied diligently, and the result was what might be expected. Winter term taught by Walter S. Peaslee. Emphatically one of the best schools of the year. Order perfect and progress truly remarkable, both in extent and in thoroughness. Mr. Peaslee has rare ability as an instructor and has by his pronounced success in this school added fresh laurels to an already enviable reputation. This school contains some of the best scholars in town.

DISTRICT NO. 5.—The summer term was begun by Miss Julia A. Cutler, who left on account of ill health in the seventh week of the term. Miss Cutler came to this school highly (or at least loudly) recommended, but very evidently she was not qualified for the position, and her connection with the school cannot but be regretted. The term was completed by Miss Louise A. Eaton, who is probably the best disciplinarian in town and who seems to be regarded by Prudential Committees in the light of "a very present help in time of trouble." She speedily worked order out of chaos and accomplished more in the remaining four weeks of the term than had apparently been thought of in the six preceding. While we have so competent teachers at home it is doubtful wisdom to go abroad for those of untried merit. Fall term taught by the same teacher with her usual conspicuous success, and the winter term which is still in session, is also under her efficient management. I would respectfully suggest to the voters of this District the urgent necessity of providing their school-room with a recitation seat. There is now none whatever that can be used, and the scholars are obliged, while reciting, to perch themselves on the front row of desks; and as the top of the desks presents an inclined plane of quite decided character, they have to assume a position that gives them the appearance of being about to engage in a game of "leap-frog." The attitude certainly is not a graceful one, and I should not suppose it could be very comfortable especially to the younger scholars whose feet cannot touch the floor. A trifling expense would supply the deficiency.

DISTRICT NO. 6.—Summer and fall terms taught by Miss Lillian M. Wells. This was Miss Wells's first attempt but she met with good success. She seems perfectly at ease in the school-room, and is especially successful in teaching young scholars. Progress good and order excellent.

DISTRICT NO. 7.—Miss Alida Quimby taught both the summer and the fall term. This teacher is finely educated and thoroughly conscientious and faithful in the discharge of her duties. Both terms were successful. No other teacher in town made such marked progress in her manner and method of teaching. Several unpleasant characteristics of the first term were either materially modified or altogether done away with in the second. Progress very good.

DISTRICT NO. 8.—Summer term taught by Miss Ella F. Pulsifer. A fine school; and I attribute its excellence (in so far as it was due to her) chiefly to the energy of the teacher. She has splendid executive ability and much force of character, and the influence of these traits was apparent in the general appearance of the school. She might safely undertake a much larger school. Fall term taught by Miss L. Jennie Currier, who is well-known as one of our most experienced and accomplished teachers. In point of literary qualifications she has no superior and few, if any, equals in town. She has taught many terms in town and always with gratifying results; and in the present instance the skill of the competent teacher was displayed in the excellent progress made by the scholars. In other respects, however, I am sorry to say the school was by no means such as could be desired; for this the teacher certainly cannot be held accountable, and in most cases even the scholars were comparatively blameless; the "lion's share" of the responsibility evidently belongs to some of the parents. There appears to have existed in this District for many years a family feud of a very decided character, and this is not the first time it has thrown its baneful shadow across the school-room and crippled the usefulness of the teacher. It is much to be regretted that a neighborhood quarrel should be allowed so to interfere with the progress of some of the most intelligent scholars in town.

DISTRICT NO. 9.—Summer and fall terms taught by Miss Emma J. Lane. The best proof of Miss Lane's success in this particular school and of her popularity in the District is to be found in the fact that she has now been their teacher for four consecutive terms. Her success during the past year has fully justified the good opinion in which she is held. The school made good progress, a class in Primary Grammar making an especially creditable appearance.

DISTRICT NO. 10.—This District has had but one term, and that was taught by Miss Susie E. Farrar. It was an excellent school. Miss Farrar possesses the elements of a highly successful teacher.

DISTRICT NO. 11.—Summer and fall terms taught by Miss Frances M. Hatch. This teacher has taught so long and so well in this District that it seems quite unnecessary to say more than that she has taught the school again; that the school was a good one may be regarded as a foregone conclusion. The people of this District show commendable wisdom in retaining so faithful a teacher.

DISTRICT NO. 13.—Fall term taught by Miss M. D. Leighton. Miss Leighton has taught several terms in town and always with gratifying results. She possesses in an unusual degree the power to interest and please the younger class of scholars, and under her efficient management this small school was a decided success. Order and progress both good.

ALLAN J. HACKETT,

Belmont, N. H., Feb. 26, 1879.

Superintending School Committee.

[Since submitting my report I have been informed that Miss Eaton, the teacher in District No. 5, has been compelled to give up the school, and that Rev. E. S. Moulton has been engaged to complete it. Miss Eaton's connection with the school was entirely successful in every respect.]
